FOOD FIGHT!

Gallery, First Level

10:30AM - 1PM

presented by Kalsec, Inc.
Howard Haley, Applications Fellow
Jill McKeague, Senior Scientist

Don't worry...they won't really throw food at you...but they'll make this workshop fun and educational! Visit a rotation of three stations...

Station 1:

Colors and the pH battle

In the world of colors, the shift to replace synthetics with naturals is on the rise...consumers want natural alternatives.

Station 2:

This isn't your mother's spice cabinet.

At this station, you'll participate in a hands-on demonstration that showcase how easy it is to use liquid extracts

Station 3: Combat Oxidation...with natural solutions.

Control oxidation and shelf life in your applications with natural antioxidant solutions.

Seminar Sessions

Rooms 117/118, Second Level

2PM - 3PM: Texture Revolution

Matthew Patrick, VP of R&D

TIC Gums

Texture has traditionally been an under leveraged aspect of food product design. If you set out to deliberately design the texture of a new product, how would you do it? The best way to answer this question is through a discussion on methodology rather than specific ingredients.

1PM - 2PM: Properties of Maillard Reaction Products: A Focus on Antioxidants

Dr. Benjamin L. Jones, Sr. Flavor Chemist,

David Michael Flavors

The products of Maillard Reactions are best known for providing color and flavor, however MRPs exhibit a number of other properties including salt enhancement, metal chelation, anti-inflammation and anti-oxidation.

12PM - 1PM: Decontamination of Entire Food Processing Facilities

Tyler Mattson, Decontamination Specialist

ClorDiSys Solutions.

Compare methods of sterilizing/decontamination food facilities, including gaseous, vapor, misting, steam and fogging systems, as well as manual wipe and spray techniques.
